COUSE OBJECTIVES

At the conclusion of this activity, participants should be able to:

• Describe the imaging anatomy and protocols that are necessary to arrive at the diagnosis of Peritoneal diseases.
• Explain the performance and processing of MRI and CT studies designed to depict anatomy and pathology.
• Develop differential diagnosis that relates to the pertinent imaging and clinically relevant findings for each of the cases covered in this course.
• Apply quality improvement strategies to the practice of interventional radiology with a focus on increasing efficiency, communication, and collaboration.
• Assess the current status and future applications of advanced breast imaging technologies.
• Optimize imaging methods to reduce the number of false-positive mammography interpretations.
• Evaluate current technical advances in cardiac imaging hardware and software, as well as the utilization of these tools to gain rapid, detailed functional and anatomic information for cardiac assessment.
• Outline the fundamentals of the latest advanced techniques in MRI and CT and their current roles and limitations in clinical practice.
• Integrate information presented in this course into efforts to improve the imaging skills of the participants.
